The Green Ticket is a not for profit organization (NPO) that aims to provide sustainable livelihoods and food security to communities by developing job opportunities, environmental knowledge and economies related to mitigation and adaptation, e.g. reforestation, conservation and the Carbon trade market.

Current projects include business startups including training and skills development, youth education, reforestation, agroforestry and tree planting with schools and other community projects. Furthermore TGT is also actively involved in Carbon accounting research and development at the Nelson Mandela Metropolitan University.
